VOL. XX. CHICAGO, SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 9, 1866. NUMBER 96.

THE NEWS.

General Rousseau has been on the road for the past week, and is expected to reach Washington to-day.

The Secretary of the Treasury has announced that the Government requirements during the past week have been $4,000,000.

Governor Archbald has been nominated by the Republican convention for Congress in the Luzerne District.

The total amount of National Bank Circulation issued to date is stated to be $299,941, Yesterday's Liverpool quotations of the Atlantic Cable quoted Pennsylvania at 97½. It is also reported that the cable is working well to New York.

Jesse Grant's name is by the Atlantic Cable mentioned as the successor to Gen. Rawlins. Gen. Grant himself has published a bill in the Financial Chronicle denying the rumors of Salisbury and Hotchkiss.

Our consul at Liverpool states that large quantities of rags are constantly being shipped from that port to New York, and advises the articles interested to have a care that such cargoes are not shipped to this country.

In Louisville, yesterday evening, a workman at the iron foundry, while rolling a heavy iron pipe up an inclined plane, fell, and the pipe rolling back on him, crushing it out instantly killed him.

Hon. Farnum Buxton, the regular Republican candidate for Congress in the Third Vermont Congressional District, has about 2,000 plurality over Hoyt and Blodgett, Democrats. A Hoyt party elect, in the central district of Vermont, is claimed by the Republican papers in that district has resulted in a majority for Hoyt. The Democratic papers in Vermont are not heard from.

The people of Pekin, Ill., are determined to build a railroad east. It is now consequently Pekin and Peoria, Pekin and Logansport, Pekin and Terre Haute, Pekin and Paris, Pekin and Danville will launch the race as soon as the roads are built.

A correspondent of the Cleveland Herald says that at a gathering was nothing more distinguished than a few gentlemen partially assembled at Ohio grocery, when the President arrived and said, "Fellows! grass never thrives where leather is put down. The dearest always yours." Here is Presidential dignity, of the real democratic species.

By the way of Newfoundland we have the news from the fishing grounds. Intelligence has been received there of an improvement in the fishery at Labrador. As far north as Cape Harrison the catch was good along the coast. The codfish of the Newfoundland shore are reported very scarce, are on the whole very unfavorable. Nothing like an average result is anticipated.

The body of Mr. Cyrus W. Field, the Atlantic Telegraph man, and Mr. Johnson's Postmasters, threw this week's issue of the Mercantile Journal, of Baltimore, (Gen. Grant's Post Office, and then sent word to the editor that he was instructed not to circulate any papers which did not support the administration of President Johnson." What, then, are the people going to do? If Mr. Johnson is to last this period before, he should leave similar instructions to the Postmasters of New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, &c.

Another case under the Civil Rights bill is undergoing trial in Macon, Ga. A negro possessing considerable property recently purchased a house and lot, which was offered for sale during the owner's absence, the proprietor being absent from the city at that time. When he returned, and learned of the authority of his purchase, he refused to sell against the black, who was compelled to vacate the premises, by the civil authorities, on the ground that he was not a citizen, and incapable of possession, etc. The freedman immediately applied to the military, and the case will shortly be decided.

A cranberry growers convention was held at Norwich, Mass., on Tuesday last, at which almost every town in the county was represented. It was stated that the crop this season would not be more than half as large as the previous year, and that the berries were also much smaller. The crop in New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, was also represented as below the average. The Yarmouth Register says in speaking of cranberries took place respecting the quality of the fruit grown on the sandy plains, in which a large number of the members participated. Almost all were of the opinion that nothing in the cold rains seemed against the fine berries.

The great ironclad ram Dunderberg is now at the Navy Yard, Brooklyn, and is undergoing a thorough overhauling. She is under the command of Lieutenant Commander Alexander Murray, who has been in charge of her since the time she was launched, and got her the engineers familiarity with her working. She was put in dry dock immediately upon her arrival, and will be out in a few days, when she will be ready for sea. She is a splendid vessel, and seems in every respect built, and at that under-thirty-five recollections of the tremendous power she will be capable of exerting in the hour of trial, assure an easy speed of nine knots per hour. The intention is to operate under an average of twenty pounds of steam, which will give a thirty revolutions per minute. The maximum speed, however, that can be safely maintained is about eighteen knots per hour. Nevertheless the engines, equal to a speed of between eighteen and eighteen knots an hour.

The race between Lowell and Fall River (Massachusetts), each striving for the first place in the matter of manufactures. It has been claimed for the last mentioned place that by the 1st of January next it will have 60,000 spindles running; whereupon the Courier of Lowell declares that they (the incorporated companies) on the first of last January 427,000 spindles in operation, and the new enterprises putting on 60,000 spindles, which will make 487,000. The Courier gives the following statistics of these corporations: Their issued capital is $18,400,000; their surplus and undivided profits, $7,000,000; their loans, 28,500 looms, and 950 printing machines. They are using 8,000 weaves and 1,000 hands. They manufacture 4,000,000 yards of cotton per week, and converse with 1,000 pounds of cotton and 12,000 yards of clean wool.

The total vote given at the Vermont election for Governor was 42,000. This is the largest ever before given in the State, and the Republican majority will, without doubt, exceed 20,000. The Democratic vote will be about 12,000. This is the largest vote ever given in the State. Last year the vote in Burlington was 772 Republican to 117 Copperhead. This year it will be about 1,000 Republican to 200 Copperhead. In Salisbury, last year 80 Republican, 43 Copperhead; this year 84 Republican majority. In Middlebury, last year 180 to 91; this year 261 to 91. In Bristol, last year 180 to 91; this year 261 to 91. In Ferrisburgh, last year 200 to 91; this year 300 to 91. In Springfield, last year 160 to 91; this year 260 to 91. And so it runs through the whole State.

The Democratic Convention of the Fifth Congressional district of Missouri, held at St. Louis on Thursday last, nominated Hon. Thomas T. Crittenden for Governor. The nomination was made by acclamation, and was received with great enthusiasm. The resolutions adopted declare that the Democratic party is the party of the Union, and that the Union must be restored. They denounce the Radical party as a sectional party, and declare that the Union must be restored by the States, and not by the General Government. They declare that the Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and that the Supreme Court is the only tribunal to which the people can look for the protection of their rights. They declare that the Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and that the Supreme Court is the only tribunal to which the people can look for the protection of their rights. They declare that the Constitution is the supreme law of the land, and that the Supreme Court is the only tribunal to which the people can look for the protection of their rights.

The Secretary of the Navy was introduced and applauded. He said next General Grant and Admiral Farragut. As elsewhere all along the route, the latter received the loudest cheers. He responded in a brief speech, in which he said:

"My fellow citizens: My age has been overthrown, we have in turn our attention to peace. He was few to say he was grateful for this kind reception. He said not look upon this demonstration as any personal compliment, but as a proof that the people were determined to maintain the principles of the Government. He did not look upon these demonstrations as personal compliments, but as evidence

Gross Improprieties in the City—Social Gayety Resumed—The Queen of Prussia's Favorites—The Queen's Reception—The Prince at Vienna—Prussian Government—The Incident of the War.

(Correspondence of the Chicago Tribune.)

VIENNA, August 18, 1866.

The capital of Austria is a book on the outward strides in the course of the last ten years. It was but seven the old Imperial City, which had nearly fourteen years of quiet, was thrown into the vortex of the world's politics, and with it into the whirl of fashionable dissipation. Apropos of gayety, the contents of which I am to be illustrated by correspondingly gay letters, it is a French fête day, and the streets are filled with soldiers and citizens in their gala dress, and the Prater, the Vienna Boulevards, and the Glacis are thronged with pleasure seekers. Within the city, owing to the universal dullness of the season, there is certainly enough talent, even when there is not genius, to make it interesting, and to give a zest to the pleasures of the table. But there is not much of that, for opportunities for entertainment are rather limited. Nobody is at home, and the publicity about, and among the effects would be made correspondingly fine; and that the competition contains the elements of success, is proved by the fact that the Austrian Government has recognized the claims of German manufacturers to exhibit at the Exposition, and has given to specific entertainments in honor of the Emperor and Empress, and the sympathies of Germans manifested on the occasion of their visit to Vienna. Further than this operatic entertainments are rather rarely given, and the Opera House is not so much used but that opportunities for a hearing of the artists can be enjoyed without engaging a box. Of this latter privilege I have availed myself but sparingly, and the result was in the main disappointing. Of the artists who have appeared in Vienna during the season, Mme. Ilma de Murska, Signor Bettini, Signor Rokitansky, and Herr Ander and Herr Beck have been the most prominent. Formerly Mme. Ilma de Murska was a favorite with the Viennese, but her voice has lost much of its former power, and her singing, though still artistic, is not equal to what it was. Signor Bettini, who has been engaged for the Academy of Music, New York, next season, is a tenor of considerable power, but his voice is not of the sweetest quality, and his singing is not artistic. Signor Rokitansky, a young Italian, who has been engaged for the Academy of Music, New York, next season, is a tenor of considerable power, but his voice is not of the sweetest quality, and his singing is not artistic. Herr Ander and Herr Beck have been the most prominent. Formerly Mme. Ilma de Murska was a favorite with the Viennese, but her voice has lost much of its former power, and her singing, though still artistic, is not equal to what it was. Signor Bettini
